4. How the Institute Protects Data

The Institute takes all necessary steps to ensure that your data is processed securely and in accordance with data protection regulations.

The Institute does not retain your personal data for longer than necessary in relation to the original purposes for which it was collected. Your data is only transferred within the contractual and legal frameworks specified, and in the case of our data processors, we ensure through contractual terms that they do not process your personal data for purposes contrary to your consent.

You voluntarily provide your personal data during registration or when communicating with the Institute. Therefore, we ask you to pay special attention to the accuracy, correctness, and truthfulness of the data you provide, as you are responsible for them. Incorrect, inaccurate, or incomplete data may prevent you from using our services.

If you provide personal data that does not belong to you but to another person, we assume that you have the necessary authorisation to do so.

In the event of the use of misleading personal data, or if any of our visitors commits a criminal offence against us or attacks the Institute's system, we will retain the visitor's data for the purpose of establishing civil liability or conducting criminal proceedings.

The employees and contributors involved in the Institute's data processing and/or data handling are entitled to access your personal data to a predetermined extent, subject to confidentiality obligations.

We protect your personal data with appropriate technical and other measures to ensure data security and availability, as well as to protect it from unauthorised access, modification, damage, disclosure, or any other unauthorised use.

As part of our organisational measures, we control physical access to our buildings, provide continuous training to our employees, and store paper-based documents securely. As part of our technical measures, we use encryption, password protection, and antivirus software.

However, please note that data transmission over the internet cannot be considered fully secure. While the Institute does everything possible to make processes as secure as possible, we cannot assume full responsibility for data transmission via our website. However, once data is received by the Institute, we comply with strict regulations to ensure the security of your data and to prevent unauthorised access.

5. Data Storage and Processing Systems Used

The Institute stores data on various cloud-based platforms and does not operate its own servers. The Institute's internal regulations govern proper data management and access, ensuring that only employees with the appropriate authorisation can access the data necessary for their work.

The Institute may also transfer data abroad. The cloud-based services detailed below do not always have storage locations in Hungary. All systems used by the Institute either operate on servers located within the European Union or have special agreements with the relevant authorities to certify the security of data storage outside the EU.

By submitting your personal data, you accept that its transfer, storage, and processing may take place outside the European Economic Area (EEA).

If we use external service providers for data processing on our behalf, we only transfer the personal information necessary for the provision of the service, and we enter into a contract ensuring that the provider complies with the Institute's data protection and information security requirements. These data are processed in compliance with legal regulations and are only disclosed to third parties with your consent or where the Institute is legally or legally obliged to do so.

The court, the prosecutor's office, and other authorities (e.g. the police, the tax authority, the National Authority for Data Protection and Freedom of Information) may contact the Institute to request information, disclose data, or provide documents. In such cases, we must comply with our data disclosure obligations, but only to the extent strictly necessary to fulfil the purpose of the request. Affected individuals will be informed accordingly.

The Institute uses the following systems for data storage and processing:

- Salesforce, Salesforce Inc., San Francisco, California, USA
- Google (Apps, Mailing, etc.), Google LLC, Mountain View, California, USA
- Canvas, Instructure, Inc., Salt Lake City, Utah, USA

The data processing carried out by these systems is subject to their own privacy policies. For more information, please refer to the privacy policies and data processing practices available on the respective third-party websites.

Our website may contain links to other websites that are not owned by the Institute. While we strive to display reliable sources, we do not accept responsibility for data collected by websites not operated by the Institute, including how they use, store, or disclose such data.

6. Cookies

7. What Should You Know About Our Direct Marketing and Newsletter Data Processing?

During registration, or later by modifying your stored personal data on the newsletter and/or direct marketing registration interface (i.e., by clearly expressing your intention to give consent), you may grant your consent for us to use your personal data for marketing purposes. In this case, until consent is withdrawn, we will process your data for direct marketing and/or newsletter purposes and send you advertisements, other mailings, informational materials, and offers, as well as forward you our newsletter (Grtv. Section 6).

The Institute maintains records of the following types of registrations:

Type of Registration	Legal Basis	Description of Activity and Purpose of Registration	Duration
General newsletter for visitors subscribing via the website.	Voluntary consent (GDPR Article 6(a))	Subscription to the newsletter as a website visitor, in order to receive the latest news about the Institute.	Until unsubscribed

If you have registered as a website visitor or a prospective training participant, you may give your consent for direct marketing and the newsletter either jointly or separately, and you may withdraw such consent(s) at any time, free of charge.

The deletion of a registration is in all cases considered a withdrawal of consent. However, the withdrawal of consent for direct marketing and/or newsletter-related data processing is not interpreted as a withdrawal of consent for data processing related to our website. Each consent is granted for a specific purpose; for example, registering on the website and subscribing to the newsletter are two separate purposes, managed in two separate databases, and are not linked.

For technical reasons, we commit to processing the withdrawal or cancellation of individual consents within 15 working days.

As a current training participant or employee of the Institute, you gave your consent upon signing your contract or agreement for the Institute to send you emails at any time. This consent cannot be withdrawn before the end of the contract or agreement; however, once the contract or agreement is terminated, the Institute's right to contact you automatically ceases.

8. Key Rights of the Data Subject in Relation to Data Processing

The data subject may, at any time, in relation to data processing:

- Request information about data processing,
- Request access to the data processed about them,
- Request rectification of inaccurate data or completion of incomplete data,
- Request the erasure of data processed based on their consent,
- Object to the processing of their data,
- Request the restriction of data processing.

Upon request for information, the data subject—unless restricted for legally defined reasons—has the right to know whether their personal data is being processed by the Institute and to receive information regarding:

- The purpose of processing their data,
- The legal basis for the Institute's data processing,
- The duration for which the Institute processes their data,
- The specific data processed by the Institute and to receive a copy of them,
- The recipients or categories of recipients of their personal data,
- Any transfers to third countries or international organisations,
- The source of the data, if not collected directly from the data subject,
- The characteristics of automated decision-making, if applied by the data controller,
- The data subject's rights related to data processing,
- The available legal remedies.

The Institute responds to requests for information and access within a maximum of one month. If the data subject requests additional copies of their processed personal data, the Institute may charge a reasonable fee based on administrative costs.

When requesting the rectification (modification) of data, the data subject must prove the accuracy of the new data and confirm that they are authorised to request the modification. The Institute can only evaluate whether the new data is valid and if the previous data should be corrected based on this proof.

If it is unclear whether the processed data is accurate or correct, the Institute will not rectify the data but will instead mark it, indicating that it has been contested by the data subject but is not necessarily incorrect. Once the authenticity of the request has been verified, the Institute rectifies the inaccurate personal data or completes the requested data without undue delay. The Institute notifies the data subject of the rectification or marking of the data.

The data subject may request the erasure or blocking of their data, meaning that the Institute is obliged to delete the data subject's personal data without undue delay if:

- The processing of personal data was unlawful,
- The personal data is no longer necessary for the purpose for which it was processed,
- The data was processed based on consent, and the data subject has withdrawn their consent, and no other legal basis justifies further processing,
- A legal regulation requires the Institute to delete the data, and this obligation has not yet been fulfilled.

The data subject may request the restriction of data processing, which the data controller must comply with if any of the following conditions apply:

- The data subject disputes the accuracy of the personal data. In this case, restriction applies for the period necessary for the data controller to verify the accuracy of the personal data.
- The data processing is unlawful, but the data subject objects to the erasure of the data and instead requests restriction of its use.
- The data controller no longer needs the personal data for processing, but the data subject requires it for the establishment, exercise, or defence of legal claims.
- The data subject has objected to the processing of their data. In this case, the restriction applies until it is determined whether the data controller's legitimate grounds override the data subject's legitimate interests.

If data is subject to restriction, such personal data - except for storage - may only be processed with the data subject's consent, or for the establishment, exercise, or defence of legal claims, or for the protection of the rights of another natural or legal person, or for reasons of important public interest of the European Union or a Member State.

The Institute will notify the data subject in advance before lifting the restriction on processing.

The data subject has the right to object at any time, on grounds relating to their particular situation, to the processing of their personal data under Article 6(1)(f) of the GDPR.

In such cases, the Institute may no longer process the personal data, unless it demonstrates compelling legitimate grounds for processing that override the interests, rights, and freedoms of the data subject, or if processing is necessary for the establishment, exercise, or defence of legal claims.

If the data subject believes that the data processing violates the GDPR or the Infotv. (Hungarian data protection law), or they object to how the Institute processes their personal data, they are advised to first contact the Institute with their complaint. All complaints will be investigated.

If, despite filing a complaint, the data subject remains dissatisfied with how the Institute handles their data, or if they wish to escalate their concerns directly to an authority, they may lodge a complaint with the National Authority for Data Protection and Freedom of Information (NAIH) (address: 1055 Budapest, Falk Miksa utca 9-11., postal address: 1363 Budapest, Pf. 9., email: ugyfelszolgalat@naih.hu, website: www.naih.hu).

The data subject also has the right to take legal action to protect their data. The court will proceed with the case as a priority. The data subject is free to choose whether to submit their claim to the court (<http://birosag.hu/torvenyszekek>) competent for their place of residence (permanent address) or place of stay (temporary address). Find your local court: <http://birosag.hu/ugyfelkapcsolati-portal/birosag-kereso>.

9. Other Provisions

The Institute reserves the right to unilaterally modify this Privacy Policy at any time at its sole discretion. In justified cases, we will notify you of such changes via email.

Detailed information about the modifications can be found on the updated website of Milestone Institute. We recommend that you check this Policy each time you visit the website to see if any changes have been made to sections that are important to you.

Budapest, 10 April 2025

Andor Kelenhegyi

President

Milestone Education Association

Supplement No. 1 to the Privacy Policy

The Institute is responsible for the education and supervision of persons under the age of eighteen, and the best interests of children must be given paramount protection. This requires the Institute to verify the moral integrity of all its employees and contractors who have direct contact with children. The Institute applies the analogy of Section 44/A of the currently effective Labour Code to its contracted personnel as well. (For full references to the relevant legislation, please see the Hungarian version of this policy available on our website.)

For employees:

1. The Institute may not establish an employment relationship with any person who:

a) is listed in the criminal records under:

aa) offences under Act IV of 1978 on the Criminal Code, applicable until 30 June 2013, including: murder, assisting in suicide, violation of personal liberty, human trafficking, altering family status, endangering minors, violent sexual offences, indecency, corruption of minors, abuse of prohibited pornographic material, facilitating prostitution, drug abuse, among others.

- b) Employees

as contained in the official certificate issued by the Criminal Records Office.

7. Personal data obtained under points (1)–(3) shall be processed until the date of the employment decision or, in the case of employment, until the termination of the employment relationship.

For Contracted Personnel:

The Institute only requires the contracted individual contributor to present their criminal record certificate but does not make a copy of it. A copy of an official criminal record certificate does not constitute legally valid proof that it is an authentic copy of an official public document. Therefore, a copy is not suitable for verifying the authenticity of the data contained in the certificate. Under current legal provisions, only the presentation of the original document is legally compliant, whereas making copies would violate the principle of purpose limitation under the General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR).

Before establishing the contractual relationship, the Institute's authorised representative verifies the criminal record certificate to ensure that there are no entries contradicting the Child Protection Policy.

Once this verification is completed - if the reviewer is not the authorised signatory - they inform the signatory that there is no integrity-related obstacle to concluding the contract. The Institute does not make any records regarding the content of the criminal record certificate. If the notification is made in writing, it must be deleted immediately after the contract is signed or if the contract is not concluded.
